Another Crash on The Lincoln Way

The Lincoln highway is getting so dangerous of late that people are afraid to travel on it, especially at night. Drunken and reckless drivers have been causing many accidents, and it is not an uncommon sight to see reckless drivers running forty and fifty miles and more per hour, endangering the cars and lives of careful drivers.

Early Sunday morning, about 2 o'clock, another crash occurred on the Lincoln highway, near Frankfort, making the second accident within a week. A week before the Olson car of Mokena was wrecked by a careless Negro driver, and this time two cars were wrecked at a point east of Frankfort, near the Hickory creek bridge, on the Lincoln highway.

A car with four hunters, west-bound, had stopped to fix their lights. Three of the men had gotten out of the car. They saw a car coming from the rear at a terrific speed, and seeing that a crash was imminent, they yelled a warning to the fourth man in the rear seat, who leaped to safety. The men had no time to get their guns, which were in the rear seat. The crash was so terrific that the impact tore a barrel of a shotgun off the stock. A spare tire rim on the back of the car was nearly forced thru the back end. Both cars, which were Fords, were badly damaged. No one was injured. A man by the name of Kratzberg drove the car which caused the crash.

It is about time that our legislators and Congressmen enact legislation that will keep reckless and drunken drivers off the public highways. The law should be so drastic that if the offense is committed the third time, the offending party's license, and even car, should be confiscated by the State. We also must elect honest men, who will enforce the laws and safeguard the lives and property of the other auto owners.

Tinley Concrete Road Near Finish

Work on the concrete road at Tinley Park has progressed wonderfully within the last few weeks, and with a big force of men and plenty of material on the job, has been pushed so well that the road has been finished past the Fahrenholz hill, north of here. It had been hoped that weather conditions would hold good for ten days or two weeks, at the end of which time the road will be completed thru the village. The rain of the week, however, will retard the work. Just as soon as weather conditions are right, the force is right on the job again.

Frankfort Uses Oil Burners to Beat High Coal Price

All over the country people are seeking some means or other to beat the coal barons at their game and to bring about a reduction in coal prices. As a result of this campaign, all kinds of new fuel is being sought. The latest is the use of kerosene oil as a fuel. Concerns are springing up all over the country making burners and oil heaters.

Some of the farmers around Frankfort have put in oil burners with the idea of getting oil cheaper than coal. Just how satisfactory this will be remains to be seen. One fact is certain—that there is plenty of coal; but the big operators don't want the public to know this, so they preach scarcity on account of the strike. A Chicago investigating committee recently visited some of the Illinois mines and found plenty of empty coal cars and miners working only two days a week. This shows the idea of the operators is to prevent production of coal on a large scale, as this would mean flooding the market, and cheaper coal. The weather so far has been in favor of the householder, and it is hoped it will continue so for a long time, so that the coal barons and profiteers will get stuck good and plenty with their coal.

Will I. C. Come Thru Frankfort?

Frankfort is still wrestling with its transportation problem. Since the Lincoln highway has been closed, west of here, the motor buses must detour, and schedules have all been disarranged, so that it is hard to tell when a bus is coming or going.

The Frankfort committee which was appointed some time ago to confer with the Michigan Central officials relative to some kind of passenger or express service has not had a meeting with the railroad officials, so it is not known just how the Michigan Central stands on this matter.

There is some speculation that the I. C. may do something about building a branch from Matteson to Frankfort thru to Joliet. The fact that considerable surveying is being done east of here just now has given rise to this speculation.

Roadhouse Opened

The roadhouse between Frankfort and Matteson on the Lincoln highway was formally opened Saturday night with a big dance. Tony Augustino, well known labor leader of Joliet and Chicago Heights, is conducting the place. It is understood he and his family will live at this place.

Mokena School Notes

A new compound microscope has just been added to the equipment of the biological department of the High School. It was made by the Spencer Optical Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., and is one of their best. It has one 10-inch ocular and two bifocal objectives, one 16 millimeters and the other 4 millimeters; with the latter a magnification of 200,000 times can be obtained. It has an iris diaphragm under the stage, and is equipped so that a sub-stage condenser can be added at any time. The illumination is provided by a double mirror under the stage, one side being plane and the other concave.

Many valuable volumes have also been added to the biological library.

In the Civics Class debate, last week, on the subject, "Resolved, that Women should be allowed to sit as Members of Congress," the ladies, Madeline Farrer and Annie Silogy, who supported the affirmative, were declared the winners.

This week the subject was "Resolved, that the Cabinet of the United States should be composed of Members of the House of Representatives, and that they should be re-elected after selection for the Cabinet." The resolution was brought in in the form of a Government bill by Philip Hacker, the leader of the Government, and opposed by Robert Geuther, the leader of the opposition.

All the grades in the school held Halloween parties during the last period on Monday. The rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion. The first six grades met in Miss Jones' room. After an interesting program, they had a number of games, such as ducking for apples, reading fortunes, etc. Then refreshments were served.

The seventh and eighth grades met in Mrs. Green's room, and the High School students in their own room. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

Orland Has Special School Election

Saturday evening a special election was held for the purpose of electing one school trustee to fill the vacancy of Thomas Wheeler. Mrs. Ella M. Loebe received 63 votes, and James Cannon 1. Election in favor of Mrs. Loebe.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cox and daughter Eleanor were entertained at dinner Sunday at the home of Mrs. Clarence Butcher.

Special—Mr. Walter Mohr was entertained at dinner at the Englewood police station. Mr. Mohr was arrested for speeding on a boulevard, and just happened to be in time for dinner before Dr. Schussler came to bail him out.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kretzmeier and family, from Joliet, were entertained at dinner at the William Keuch home, Sunday.

Mrs. Harry A. Cox entertained a number of friends in honor of her birthday Saturday afternoon. Games were played, after which a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess. Those winning prizes were Bertha Nicoli, Laura Heald. Mr. and Mrs. Higgins Page and daughter Dorothy moved to La-

Mokena Auto Crash Victims To Bring Suit

The smash in which the Olson family of Mokena figured when their auto was wrecked and they were injured when Cornelius Woods (colored) of Chicago Heights ran into them on the Lincoln highway, will probably be taken to court, as Woods is said to be fighting against a settlement. It was alleged that Woods has been operating his car without a State license, and Gustave Olson took up the matter with the State's Attorney's office in Chicago, but that officer refused to take the case. It is probable that a suit will be instituted against Woods for damages. It appears that it is a hard matter to get justice in Cook county.

John Groth and family, formerly of Mokena, and who are now located in Wisconsin, expect to move to California next spring. Mr. Groth has been in poor health, and a change of climate has been recommended for the benefit of his health. Mr. Groth conducted a saloon in Mokena for many years before locating in Wisconsin.

A Halloween dance was held Tuesday evening at the Hatch hall, Mokena. A company of young folks got together and sponsored the affair, which was purely for a good time. E. Wachter furnished the music, and everyone had a delightful time.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler and Mrs. J. W. Jackson will entertain the Ladies' aid society of the M. E. church at the former's home on Wednesday afternoon Nov. 15.

Mrs. William Becker has gone to Troy to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. John Rutherford, for the winter. She has been ill, but is now getting along fine, and her many Mokena friends hope to see her fully recovered soon, so that she will be able to be in their midst again next spring.

Baseball Row Is Dragged to Court

The Frankfort and Peotone baseball teams got into a big squabble on account of the games played on Labor Day and on the Sunday before Labor Day at the Frankfort tournament. The Peotone team contends they were promised $100 a game by the Frankfort manager, who denies this, saying Peotone was paid $100, which he maintains they were only entitled to. Frankfort was the victor in the tournament, Peotone being defeated after playing two games.

John Diedrich, president of the Peotone baseball club, has brought suit against the Frankfort baseball team. The suit is brought to determine the terms of the contract under which the teams played.

Tinley Park Has New Oil Station

Tinley Park will have plenty of gas stations. Charles Hollstein has just had a new tank installed. His place is right on the concrete road, and he will be sure to get much trade. He will furnish gas to the autoists at any time, day or night.

Halloween was observed in the usual way. The spooks were busy, and things changed around rather mysteriously. Last Saturday some of the youngsters played pranks, and placed a big pile of boxes, chicken coops, barrels, etc., in front of the Keuch market. No damage has been reported.

The old Oak Forest school building, located in Section 21 and School District 145, is to be sold to the highest bidder, cash, on Nov. 14th. Bids will be received from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Nov. 13th.

Snappy Bits From Worth

BY A TOWN JIGABOO

On Monday, the whole hamlet was excited into action, and dutifully turned out at the midnight hour of the night, from its daily routine of nocturnal hibernation, to gaze upon a miniature of the famous Chicago conflagration in the form of one of Worth's most revered landmarks. The home of the elderly Mr. Hildebrand, who was not living in his residence at the time (having removed to Chicago about three years ago), was razed completely by fire on the evening of October 30, 1922.

Much speculation as to the cause (the effect being seen) of the blaze was made, many persons giving their valued observations. Some advanced the "tried and true" opinion, that usually arises from cases of an incendiary nature, that a traveler, incognito, had made use of the empty dwelling, but had not been very diligent in disposing of his cigarette stubs, and thus the blaze.

A bystander remarked that the sight was very beautiful, but rather expensive. Sad but true, and the neighbors extend their sympathy and aid to Mr. Hildebrand.

A rather amusing, if not mirthful appearance, was made by a certain young "auburn" haired beauty dwelling across the way, when she descended from her veranda with a container of the well known thirst quencher in each slender hand, with which she essayed to slacken the blaze. Clad in a gauzy raiment of some marvelous material and a wonderful boat trimmed with fur appropriate to her personality, she presented a truly modern and beautiful version of "Psyche Descending From the Well."

After making certain measures to prevent the spread of the fire, the sleepy populace returned home and to their beloved feather ticks.

Perry Bishop, that austere gentleman of many famously funny oral renditions, was asked what he would like to be, were reincarnation possible (just now, this is a timely subject and the object of much discussion, far and wide). He replied shortly, in his dreamy, easy manner: "Why, a cake of soap in Pola Negri's bath tub."

"Perry," I say!

With the return of long skirts, the flapper is now taboo. These slinky fashions are rather fetching, say we!

The attention of the commuters to and from Chicago, riding the Wabash 7:10 dummy, was centered and held by a dispute carried on loudly, if not publicly, between two young dazlers from Chicago Ridge. What the subject for arbitration was, we know not. One of the many potent phrases exchanged rhymed somewhat to the following: "I never let the t—sh throw filth upon me." The talkfest was to be continued upon alighting from the train at Chicago Ridge, and many clauses were duly delivered by both parties concerned, which boded no good and certainly much evil. As to the fins of this we have not learned, but hope to be able to say soon. Of one thing we are certain, and that is it was unanimously resolved that the remaining commuters enjoyed the conversation, and their respect duly increased for the vocal members of said two parties.

That is what a Check Book is to the modern housewife or business woman. It serves in the place of keeping a large amount of ready cash on hand with which to pay bills. It serves as a receipt of any financial transaction. It serves as an undeniable record of money paid out. And last but not least, it is handy and a time saver.

Fate Takes a Hand.

Life has many embarrassing moments, but this was truly a dreadful one. I was a senior in a large university, and had had a romance with a prominent classmate. After our engagement was broken we were not on speaking terms, and this was generally known.

One evening I had been studying at a table in the library reading room when the lights went out. I stood up and collided with some one. I instinctively threw out my arms, and he did likewise.

Of course, the lights went on suddenly, and I found myself embraced and embracing my ex-fiance. Every one saw us, and we made quite a scene trying to get out.—Chicago Tribune.

"Land of El Dorado."

The word is Spanish and means "the gilded one," because the early explorers thought there was an Indian chief somewhere in South America who used to cover himself all over with gold dust at a religious festival once a year. Now the name is applied to any country where there is supposed to be an abundance of valuable natural products.

He saw me. And, oh, how I did love the look that came to his face; it was so surprised and glad, and said, "Oh! You!" In such a perfectly lovely way that I choked all up and wanted to cry. (The idea!—cry when I was so glad to see him!)

The next minute he had drawn me out of the line, and we were both talking at once, and telling each other how glad we were to see each other.

But he was looking for Mother—I know he was; for the next minute after he saw me, he looked right over my head at the woman back of me. And all the while he was talking with me, his eyes would look at me and then leap as swift as lightning first here, and then there, all over the hall. But he didn't see her. I knew he didn't see her, by the look on his face. And pretty quick I said I'd have to go. And then he said:

"Your mother—perhaps she didn't—did she come?" And his face grew all red and rosy as he asked the question.

And I said yes, and she was waiting, and that was why I had to go back right away.

And he said, "Yes, yes, to be sure," and, "good-by." But he still held my hand tight, and his eyes were still roving all over the house. And I had to tell him again that I really had to go; and I had to pull real determined at my hand, before I could break away.

I went back to Mother then. The hall was almost empty, and she wasn't anywhere in sight at all; but I found her just outside the door. I knew then why Father's face showed that he hadn't found her. She wasn't there to find. I suspect she had looked out for that.

In the afternoon I went to walk with one of the girls; and when I came in I couldn't find Mother. She wasn't anywhere downstairs, nor in her room, nor mine, nor anywhere else.

Aunt Hattie said no, she wasn't out, but that she was sure she didn't know where she was. She must be somewhere in the house.

I went upstairs then, another flight. There wasn't anywhere else to go, and Mother must be somewhere, of course. And it seemed suddenly to me as if I'd just got to find her. I wanted her so.

And I found her.

In the little back room where Aunt Hattie keeps her trunks and mothball bags, Mother was on the floor in the corner crying. And when I exclaimed out and ran over to her, I found she was sitting beside an old trunk that was open; and across her lap was a perfectly lovely pale-blue satin dress all trimmed with silver lace that had grown black. And Mother was crying and crying as if her heart would break.

Of course, I tried and tried to stop her, and I begged her to tell me what was the matter. But I couldn't do a thing, not a thing, not for a long time. Then I happened to say what a lovely dress, only what a pity it was that the lace was all black.

She said yes, it was all black—tarnished; and that it was just like everything that she had had anything to do with—tarnished; her life and her marriage, and Father's life, and mine—everything was tarnished, just like that silver lace on that dress. And she had done it by her thoughtless selfishness and lack of self-discipline.

And when I tried and tried to tell her no, it wasn't, and that I didn't feel tarnished a bit, and that she wasn't, nor Father either, she only cried all the more, and shook her head and began again, all choked up.

She said this little dress was the one she wore at the big reception where she first met Father. And she was so proud and happy when Father—and he was fine and splendid and handsome then, too, she said—singled her out, and just couldn't seem to stay away from her a minute all the evening. And then four days later he asked her to marry him; and she was still more proud and happy.

And she said their married life, when they started out, was just like that beautiful dress, all shining and spotless and perfect; but that it wasn't two months before a little bit of tarnish appeared, and then another and another.

She said things went on worse and worse—and it was all her fault. She grew sour and cross and disagreeable. She could see now that she did. But she did not realize at all then what she was doing. She was just thinking of herself—always herself; her rights, her wrongs, her hurt feelings, her wants and wishes. She never once thought that he had rights and wrongs and hurt feelings, maybe.

She said a lot more—oh, ever so much more; but I can't remember it all. I know that she went on to say that by and by the tarnish began to dim the brightness of my life, too; and that was the worst of all, she said—that innocent children should suffer, and their young lives be spoiled by the kind of living I'd had to have, with this wretched makeshift of a divided home. She began to cry again then, and begged me to forgive her; and I cried and tried to tell her I didn't mind it; but, of course, I'm older now, and I know I do mind it, though I'm trying just as hard as I can not to be Mary when I ought to be Mary. Only I get all mixed up so, lately, and I said so, and I guess I cried some more.

Then I turned on then and said, "Tut, tut," what was she thinking of to talk like this when it couldn't do a bit of good, but only made matters worse. And she said that only went to prove how she was still keeping on tarnishing my happiness and bringing tears to my bright eyes, when certainly nothing of the whole wretched business was my fault.

She thrust the dress back into the trunk then, and shut the lid. And she began to talk and laugh and tell stories, and be gayer and jollier than I'd seen her for ever so long. And she was that way at dinner, too, until Grandfather happened to mention the reception tomorrow night, and ask if she was going.

She flushed up red then, oh, so red! and said, "Certainly not." Then she added quick, with a funny little drawing-in of her breath, that she should let Marie go, though, with her Aunt Hattie. It was the only chance Father would have to see me, and she didn't feel that she had any right to deprive him of that privilege, and she didn't think it would do me any harm to be out this once late in the evening. And she intended to let me go.

TWO DAYS LATER

Well, now I guess something's doing all right! And my hand is shaking so I can hardly write—it wants to get ahead so fast and tell. But I'm going to keep it sternly back and tell it just as it happened, and not begin at the ice cream instead of the soup.

At the reception I saw Father right away, but he didn't see me for a long time. He stood in a corner, and lots of folks came up and spoke to him and shook hands; and he bowed and smiled—but in between, when there wasn't anybody noticing, he looked so tired and bored. After a time he stirred and changed his position, and I think he was hunting for a chance to get away, when all of a sudden his eyes, roving around the room, lighted on me.

My! but just didn't I love the way he came through that crowd, straight toward me, without paying one bit of attention to the folks that tried to stop him on the way. And when he got to me, he looked so glad to see me, only there was the same quick searching with his eyes, beyond and around me, as if he was looking for somebody else, just as he had done the morning of the lecture. And I knew it was Mother, of course. So I said:

"No, she didn't come."

"So I see," he answered. And there was such a hurt, sorry look away back in his eyes. But right away he smiled, and said: "But you came! I've got you."

Then he began to talk and tell stories, just as if I was a young lady to be entertained. And he took me over to where they had things to eat, and just heaped my plate with chicken patties and sandwiches and olives and pink-and-white frosted cake and ice cream (not all at once, of course, but in order.) And I had a perfectly beautiful time. And Father seemed to like it pretty well. But after a while he grew sober again, and his eyes began to rove all around the room.

He took me to a little seat in the corner afterward, and we sat down and began to talk—only Father didn't talk much. He just listened to what I said, and his eyes grew deeper and darker and sadder, and they didn't rove around so much, after a time, but just stared fixedly at nothing, away out across the room. By and by he stirred and drew a long sigh, and said, almost under his breath:

"It was just such another night as this."

And of course, I asked what was—and then I knew, almost before he had told me.

"That I first saw your mother, my dear."

"Oh, yes, I know!" I cried, eager to tell him that I did know. "And she must have looked lovely in that perfectly beautiful blue silk dress all silver lace."

He turned and stared at me.

"How did you know that?" he demanded.

"I saw it."

"You saw it?"

"Yesterday, yes—the dress," I nodded.

"But how could you?" he asked, frowning, and looking so surprised. "Why, that dress must be—seventeen years old, or more."

I nodded again, and I suppose I did look pleased; it's such fun to have a secret, you know, and watch folks

Then He Began to Talk and Tell Stories, Just as if I Was a Young Lady to Be Entertained.

guess and wonder. And I kept him guessing and wondering for quite a while. Then, of course, I told him that it was upstairs in Grandfather's trunk room; that Mother had got it out, and I saw it.

"But, what—was your mother doing with that dress?" he asked then, looking even more puzzled and mystified.

And then suddenly I thought and remembered that Mother was crying. And, of course, she wouldn't want Father to know she was crying over it—that dress she had worn when he first met her long ago! (I don't think women ever want men to know such things, do you? I know I shouldn't!) So I didn't tell. Father had begun to talk again, softly, as if to himself:

"I suppose tonight, seeing you, and all this, brought it back to me so vividly." Then he turned and looked at me. "You are very like your mother tonight, dear."

"I suppose I am, maybe, when I'm Marie," I nodded.

He laughed with his lips, but his eyes didn't laugh one bit as he said: "What a quaint little fancy of yours that is, child—as if you were two in one."

"But I am two in one," I declared. "That's why I'm a cross-current and a contradiction, you know," I explained.

"A what?" he demanded.

"A cross-current and a contradiction," I explained once more. "Children of unlikes, you know. Nurse Sarah told me that long ago. Didn't you ever hear that—that a child of unlikes was a cross-current and a contradiction?"

"Well, no—I hadn't," answered Father, in a queer, half-smothered voice. "I suppose, Mary, we were—unlikes, your mother and I. That's just what we were; though I never thought of it before, in just that way."

He waited, then went on, still half to himself, his eyes on the dancers: "She loved things like this—music, laughter, gaiety. I abhorred them. I remember how bored I was that night here—till I saw her."

"And did you fall in love with her right away?" I just couldn't help asking that question. Oh, I do so adore love stories!

A queer little smile came to Father's lips.

"Well, yes, I think I did, Mary. I just looked at her once—and then kept on looking till it seemed as if I just couldn't take my eyes off her. And after a little her glance met mine—and the whole throng melted away, and there wasn't another soul in the room but just us two. Then she looked away, and the throng came back. But I still looked at her."

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 5

JESUS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:31-44; 5:12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sickness.—Matt. 8:17.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 9:35-38; Mark 1:21-45.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How a Sick Man Was Brought to Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Healing the Paralytic.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Power to Forgive Sin.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Ministry to Human Need.

Since the topic sets forth Jesus as the Great Physician, it will be better for adult classes, especially, to take the larger text chosen by the committee and note the several outstanding cases of His healing. For some classes it will be better to study the one case of healing, namely, the healing of the paralytic.

I. Jesus Healing a Demoniac (4:31-37).

While engaged in teaching in the synagogue He was interrupted by a man who had an unclean spirit. Jesus rebuked the demon and compelled him to come out of the man. This healing shows Jesus not only gracious, but powerful to set free the whole brood of diabolical passions, such as lust, envy, anger and jealousy which rule men.

II. Jesus Heals a Woman of a Great Fever (vv. 38-39).

Peter's mother-in-law was prostrate with a great fever. They of Peter's household besought Jesus for her. Jesus rebuked the fever and it left her so that she immediately rose and ministered unto them. No earthly physician had ever been known to heal in that way. Divine healing is immediate and complete. We should distinguish between divine healing and faith healing. Faith healing is the result of the action of the mind upon the body and is measured by the degree of the faith, while divine healing is the action of the power of God upon the diseased one, and is always complete and immediate, because it is measured by the power of the Healer, God. His fame spread abroad and many sick of divers diseases were brought unto Him and He healed them all, even casting out demons and forbidding them to testify of Him.

III. Jesus Heals a Leper (5:12-16).

Leprosy was a most loathsome and terrible disease. Because of its foulness one afflicted therewith was an outcast. The disease was incurable by man, therefore the leper was regarded as hopeless and dead. In response to the leper's earnest request Jesus touched him and bade the leprosy to depart, and immediately he was healed and cleansed. Leprosy is a type of sin. Jesus has power to heal and cleanse and restore.

IV. Jesus Heals a Paralytic (5:17-26).

1. Watched by the Pharisees and Doctors (v. 1). Jesus' fame spread abroad, and this only incited jealousy on the part of these men.

2. The Paralytic Brought (v. 18, 19). This is a fine lesson in Christian service. They could not heal the man, but could bring him to Jesus, who could heal and restore. They had faith in Jesus to heal him. No effort which is required to bring a sinner to Jesus should be regarded as too great.

3. The Man's Sins Forgiven (v. 20). Jesus looked back of the palsy to its cause—sin. All disease and death is the result of sin. Jesus saw the faith of those not only who brought him, but of the man himself.

4. The Purpose of Miracles (vv. 21, 22). The Pharisees accused Christ of blasphemy when He declared the man's sins forgiven. Jesus showed them that back of the beneficent deed to the man was the demonstration of His deity. The main purpose in the working of miracles is the authentication of the divine mission of the one performing them. The working of the miracle was to demonstrate His authority to atone for sin and to grant forgiveness. While the divine power and authority are thus shown, the wisdom and love of God are shown in that in all cases the supernatural work is for the good of the individual. A true miracle is never spectacular. It is not merely a demonstration of power, but the working of power for beneficent ends, the good of some one in need.

5. Relative Value of Physical Ills and Moral and Spiritual Maladies (v. 23). Physical ill is less serious than the sins which cause them. In dealing with them we should follow the example of Christ and first deal with the cause.

Self-Love.

Self-love is a cup without any bottom; you might pour all the great lakes into it and never fill it up.—O. W. Holmes.

A Thought for Today.

Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? To his own master he standeth or falleth.—Romans 14:4.

The Lord Knoweth.

The Lord knoweth our frame and remembereth that we are dust.—Ps. 103.

A Foreign City.

A friend who spent several months in the East, says the thing that impressed him most about New York is that it is a foreign city.

The municipal signs are printed in English, Italian and Yiddish. You hear more foreign language than English in the subway, and everywhere foreign language newspapers are seen. In large sections of the city you do not see an American, or hear English spoken.

Work Without Proper Aim.

I respect the man who knows distinctly what he wishes. The greater part of all the mischief in the world arises from the fact that men do not sufficiently understand their own aims. Protecting Native Birds.

Great efforts are being made in the United States to protect the native birds, mainly because of their usefulness as insect destroyers. One expert says that in the state of Massachusetts birds destroy 21,000 bushels of insects every day, and in Nebraska 170 car loads.

BIRD IS FAST ON ITS FEET

California Roadrunner Famous for its Custom of Sprinting in Front of Trotting Horses.

A bird known as the California roadrunner has earned his common name from his delight in sprinting along roadways, especially when pursued by horsemen or moderately slow-going vehicles. In the picturesque old days of California it was no uncommon sight to see this bird running a half-mile or so in front of fast-trotting horses.

Another common name, chaparral-cock, is given in allusion to his living in the chaparral of the semi-deserts.

The bird belongs wholly to the West. Formerly he ranged from the plains of Kansas to the chaparral-covered hills of the Pacific coast and from central California to Mexico, but he is rapidly becoming rare. He is built like a heron, except for his short legs, but, unlike that water-loving bird, chooses deserts for his home. He has wings, but scarcely has the power to fly, though he is one of the fleetest of runners.

PLAN TO CONTROL WEATHER

Scheme Has Been the Dream of Many Scientists, but Nothing Practical Has Been Evolved.

Three or four years ago a Sheffield (Eng.) workman claimed to be putting the finishing touches to an instrument to enable him "to focus beams of ether oscillation" and so control the weather. Unfortunately, the instrument could not have been so perfect as he thought, for nothing further has been heard of it. Before that a Leeds scientist had come to the conclusion that it was "within the scope of human possibility to prevent disastrous cyclones, hurricanes and storms, and even to improve permanently the weather of the British Isles." The idea was the production of an instrument enabling the operator to collect or disassemble the molecules which form the atmosphere, securing the degree of density desired and so arranging the best weather required for any district or seasonal occupation. More than twelve years ago Sir Oliver Lodge demonstrated that fog could be dispelled by electricity, though the process was too costly for adoption generally.

COAL OF VEGETABLE ORIGIN

Abundant Proof That Huge Forests, in Former Epochs of the Earth, Became Petrified

Although in most instances there are comparatively few traces of its vegetable origin left, coal owes its existence to the vast masses of vegetable matter deposited through the luxuriant growth of plants in former epochs of the earth's history, and since slowly converted into a petrified state.

Coal fields today present abundant indications of the existence of huge ancient forests, usually in the form of coal formed from the roots of trees. Several such forests have been uncovered, one of which in Nova Scotia is a good example. Remains of trees have been found there, six to eight feet in height and four feet in diameter. In a colliery in England, in a space of about one-quarter of an acre, there have been found the fossilized stumps of 73 trees, with roots attached, and broken-off trunks lying about, one of them 30 feet long, and all of them turned into coal.

Some people are unable to pocket their pride because they haven't a pocket large enough.

Editor News-Bulletin,
Mokena, Ill.

Dear Sir:

On Sept. 30th, Roger Latta, a
14-year-old boy, living in La-Grange, was killed while helping a companion erect an aerial for a radio outfit.

His companion had given him the end of a wire to hold, and had then thrown the wire over the Public Service Company's line.
This caused a circuit to be formed through the boy's body, which resulted in his death.

This accident has been widely discussed in the safety organization of our company, and every means to prevent a recurrence has been considered.

In transmitting sufficient current to supply service for all the needs of a community, it is necessary to use voltages higher than that at which the current is carried into the house. The use of radio sets is harmless; however, when the aerial is installed near or over these lines, a hazard is created.
In addition to this, it is also true that the effectiveness of the set is considerably affected when the aerial is placed in certain positions relative to our wires.

Yours very truly,
D. C. STEPHENS,
Dist. Supt.

Two women are included in the five candidates for the Lanark postmaster ship, which office is to be relinquished by William Hogan. They are Mrs. Harry Gossard and Miss Daisy T. Rupp.

Embezzlement to aid his family and his wife's family is admitted by Roy Smith, ticket agent for the Illinois Traction system at Bloomington. Smith has confessed taking over $2,700 from the company since last March and, upon his admission, according to the police authorities, he was bound over under $4,000 bonds to await action of the grand jury. He says he fully expected to pay the debt by serving in the penitentiary.

The Briggs & Turivas company of Chicago, against whom the government filed a claim arising out of the handling of more than $20,000,000 in salvaged iron and steel by that firm during the war, "settled" by sending the Department of Justice a check for $428,000. The settlement was "without prejudice to any further action that may be deemed necessary." Four officials of the company are under indictment on charges of having defrauded the government of nearly $1,000,000 by making fraudulent income, war profits and excess profits tax returns.

Adj. Gen. Carlos E. Black at Springfield has received a communication from the adjutant general of the army, stating that Gov. Len Small is requested to select two candidates from among the enlisted men of the National Guard of the state, and to designate them for West Point entrance examination which is to be held in March, 1923. The appointments which will be available in July of next year, will be awarded to the qualified candidates in the order of merit established at this examination, which is competitive among all National Guard candidates throughout the United States.

Timothy Doyle is held in jail at Havana after he shot and probably fatally wounded one man and maimed two others on his farm. The shooting is said to have been a climax to a long-standing family feud. Frank Hubbard, forty-two, was shot in the head. George Hubbard, his uncle, and Jake Hubbard, sixty-two, his father, were also wounded, not seriously.

Their automobile struck by a Washash passenger train at Bement, O. R. Ferguson of Hammond was killed with his wife and baby. Two other children were badly injured.

The state department of public health at Springfield has recommended the installation of a filter plant at Carlinville to insure a safe water supply. The supply is now obtained from Macoupin creek, and the department declared the purification equipment now in use is inadequate.

The remains of Mrs. Harold Hammett, missionary, were brought from China for interment in the family burial lot at Rockford. Mrs. Hammett, who was forty-three years old, died at Kalgan, China. She served under the Methodist Protestant board of missions.

Sherman W. Searle of Rock Island, who was appointed to be assistant director of the department of public welfare by Governor Small, is a native of Rock Island county, his family having located there in 1839. Searle is a graduate of the college of law of the University of Iowa, at Iowa City.

The new Decatur lake, created when the city widened the Sangamon river and constructed a dam, is rapidly being stocked with fish by the state and federal hatcheries. W. J. Stratton, game warden, proposes to make the lake a public preserve so that ducks, geese and other game birds will be protected.

A large black eagle, a bird rarely found in Illinois, was killed by Chester Gillogly, a farmer, near Savanna, who is now watching for the bird's mate, hoping to kill it also. The eagles have been preying on lambs, small pigs and poultry. The one killed by Gillogly measured 7 feet 7 inches from tip to tip of wings and weighed 12 pounds.

Representatives from drainage and levy districts from up and down the river were there for the annual meeting of the association.

Believed to have been carried for nearly three-quarters of an hour on the cowcatcher of a Rock Island engine, the body of a man supposed to be Simon Carter, Poplar Bluffs, Mo., was found when the train pulled into Englewood station at Chicago. The crew did not know of anyone having been hit, but a watch which the man carried stopped at 5:27 o'clock from the force of the impact.

A second crop of raspberries is now being picked in the Fox river valley near Aurora. A similar phenomenon is not recalled by the oldest settlers. The hot September weather made possible the crop. Hardly a farm home but is enjoying raspberry shortcake, usually a delicacy only seen on the table in July. Peter Weil, a member of the East Aurora school board, is picking a second crop of pears from a tree at his home.

The state department of public works and buildings at Springfield has sent a letter to all road contractors in the state calling attention to the new road specifications to be used on the state highway system in bids received after the last of this month. Tests on the Bates experimental road showed that the point of greatest stress in any road is on the outer edges, and therefore the new specifications call for a thickness of nine inches at the edge of the roads tapering to six inches in the center.

Lake Decatur, a body of water formed by a dam in the Sangamon river, near Decatur, was officially set aside "as a refuge for water fowl and shore birds for conservation purposes." The lake is 13 miles long and averages one-half mile wide.

Drs. Fred C. Quitzean and W. M. Dietz, physicians at the Anna State hospital, were convicted on charges of practicing medicine without a state license and fined $100 and costs. A grand jury investigation into charges that neglect has caused suffering among the patients is expected.

REAL COURAGE

"To be feared of a thing and yet do it, is what makes the prettiest kind of a man."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

IF YOU have read "Kidnaped" you remember the quotation. It was spoken by Alan Breck, after the boy, David, had stood for a minute terrified, on the brink of a roaring torrent, and then, still sick with the fear of it, leaped across.

To Alan Breck, the leap meant little. It required no courage for him to make it, for he knew very little fear. But for the boy, who did the thing he feared as he feared death, it was a real act of heroism.

The only real courage consists in doing the thing we are afraid to do. The hulking prize-fighter of the John Sullivan type, who has as much imagination as a grizzly bear, is not brave. He is sure he is going to win. It takes no courage to go into a winning fight. The bully is never brave. In fact he is always a coward. Feeling sure that his superior size will carry him through, he picks quarrels as a pleasant method of passing his time.

Put this same bully into the ring with a large hungry tiger, face him with a man who looks as if he enjoys shooting bullets as much as the bully enjoys thrashing his physical inferiors, and all the courage oozes out of the bully.

You will never know whether you are brave or not till you find yourself in a position where you are afraid to do something that ought to be done.

If you do it, you have courage. If you quit you have not.

Never mistake a physical willingness to take a chance, to attempt some dangerous thing, for the kind of courage that counts.

It is not a brave but very foolish man who walks a tight rope over Niagara falls. It is a brave man, who not wanting to die, and knowing that an operation may send him out of the world, cheerfully goes to the table, to take the one chance that may mean his continued support of his wife or his dependents.

Often the timid school boy, who fears to quarrel, and tries his best to keep his peace with his fellows, gets the name of coward. But when this same boy has to fight for what he thinks is his honor, or to save a little boy from a bully, he becomes a very dangerous fighter.

Real courage is not daunted by pain. The boy or the man who fights when he is afraid to, stops being afraid of anything, pain or a black eye, or punishment. He fights because he has courage, and he usually wins.

There is more real courage in this world than you fancy. It is behind all great achievement. If you have it, you are fortunate. But don't be sure, either that you have or that you haven't it till you have done or refused to do something you were afraid to do. (Copyright by John Blake.)

SCHOOL DAYS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE ROAD TO FAME

HOW often in your dreams have you passed over this hard-worn, densely packed road, reached the goal and stood there in pride listening to the enthusiastic cheer of the admiring throngs around you!

In your youthful days, when new visions, like beautiful flowers, were born over night; when hope had not yet become familiar with dejection; when to picture an achievement was to realize its full accomplishment, you soared to the hilltops on the sure, swift wings of an eagle, commanding the world to kneel at your exalted presence and do your bidding.

Mother's Cook Book

There is an old refrain which runs: "Ask me no questions, I'll tell you no lies." I am inclined to think that it is full of social philosophy. Most of us, probably, have put up our hardest fights for veracity on occasions when questions have been asked us, that never should have been asked.—Katherine Fullerton Gerould.

WHAT TO EAT

WITH leftover chicken there are any number of good dishes that may be prepared with little work.

Deviled Chicken.

Make a sauce of salt, pepper, dry mustard, grated lemon peel, a dash of cayenne, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a few drops of tabasco. Add a lump of butter the size of an egg when the sauce begins to boil. When very hot add cubes of cold cooked chicken. Veal, pork or beef may be used in the same way.

Fried Chicken.

Cut up the chicken and pound each piece flat with a potato masher or mallet. Season, dredge with flour and fry in butter or drippings.

Chicken a la Maryland.

Cut up a tender chicken, season with salt and pepper, dip in egg and crumbs and arrange the pieces close together in a buttered baking dish. Dot each piece with butter, cover with a dripping pan and bake in a hot oven until brown. Make a cream sauce and put all the crumbs and bits of chicken from the pan into the sauce. Pour the sauce over the chicken.

Escalloped Chicken.

Use any kind of cold cooked chicken, freed from skin, fat and bone. Make a cream sauce. Put a layer of the sauce in a baking dish, then a layer of chicken, cut fine, then a layer of crumbs, then sauce, and repeat until the dish is full, leaving a layer of buttered crumbs on the top. Bake in a moderate oven until well browned, adding a little milk and water occasionally if it seems too dry.

Chicken Goulash.

Cut into dice two medium-sized raw potatoes. Into a hot frying pan pour two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and add the diced potatoes. Stir to keep from burning and cook five minutes. Add a dash of paprika, a cupful of boiling water, a crushed bean of garlic, a cupful of cold cooked chicken, chopped, salt and a handful of mushrooms. Cover and cook until the potatoes are done.

KIDDIES SIX

HELLO, POP!

HIS photograph! Our joy and pride—
The picture of our boy who died!
I seem to hear, 'midst tears that drop

Upon its face, his loving call
Come ringing down the darkened hall
To give me greeting: "Hello, Pop!"

It seems but yesterday he died—
But yesterday we stood beside
His bed and watched his eyelids drop

To sleep and wake in endless day—
But yesterday I heard him say
With dying accents: "Good-by, Pop!"

Last night I dreamed he stood again
With face pressed to the window pane
And watched to see my motor stop;
That when he heard me at the door
He quickly toddled 'cross the floor,
And met me, shouting: "Hello, Pop!"

Sometimes, when daylight fades to gloom
And ghostly shadows fill the room
I feel again the swelling joy;
For, from the shadows around about,
I hear once more his joyful shout
In boyish tones: "I'm papa's boy!"

When, after death's cold, chilly hands
Have loosed the last of earthly bands
And caused life's weary load to drop,
I'll feel it is supremest joy
To meet, at heaven's gate, my boy
And hear his welcome: "Hello, Pop!"

RADIO

ANTENNAE OF OTHER TYPES ARE DESCRIBED

Cage, Loop and Umbrella Forms Have Each Certain Advantages and Special Uses.

Some of the newer generation of radio amateurs may have been led to think that the cage antenna is more efficient than other forms. One of the arguments advanced for their use is that they have been adopted by the United States navy on all ships. There is a good reason for the adoption of this type of antenna for the navy, but it is not because of the great efficiency of the cage type. In fact, the only reason the cage type is used at all in the navy is because of the fact that it would be difficult for an enemy shell to carry away the antenna with a single shot.

There seems to be a good deal of misinformation on the merits of the cage-type antenna. They make a partly by its inherent characteristics. One of the most important applications of the loop antenna is as a radio compass, for ship, airplane and submarine. By means of the Bellini-Tosi system, in which two single wire antennae, erected at right angles to each other, are used, the exact bearing of a distant transmitter may be determined. This system is the one used by the numerous naval radio compass stations along the sea coast.

The umbrella-type antenna, as illustrated in Figure 10, receives its name from its general shape and similarity to an umbrella. Referring to the figure it will be seen that this type of antenna consists of a number of wires connected at the upper end of a vertical mast and radiating from this point in several directions. The lead-in is taken from the central point of the antenna system.

In general, length of the radiating wires or "ribs" of the umbrella is about two-thirds the total height of the mast, although this dimension is not fixed, and a different ratio may be employed with success. As can be seen in the illustration, insulators are placed about one-third of the way from the top of the "rib" wires, so that the actual antenna will be some distance above the ground. The over-all length of the "rib" wires, including the guy wire, should be several times as long as the mast is high. This guy wire

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Phila., Pa.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I was weak, nervous, dizzy and had headaches. I was troubled in this way for two years and was hardly able to do my work. My friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am very sorry that I did not take it sooner. But I have got good results from it and am now able to do my housework most of the time. I recommend your medicine to those who have similar troubles. I do not like publicity, but if it will help other women I will be glad for you to use my letter."—Mrs. FANNIE ROSENSTEIN, 882 N. Holly St., Phila., Pa.

Detroit, Michigan—"During the Change of Life I had a lot of stomach trouble and was bothered a great deal with hot flashes. Sometimes I was not able to do any work at all. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your little books and took it with very good results. I keep house and am able now to do all my own work. I recommend your medicine and am willing for you to publish my testimonial."—Mrs. J. S. LIVERNOIS, 2051 Junction Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. Let it help carry you through this time of life. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

It is folly for an eminent man to think of escaping censure, and a weakness to be affected by it.

Being good looking is a duty every woman owes herself.

More Decorous Fashion.

"French draperies are no longer so scant."

"No," rejoined Miss Cayenne. "Paris has gone into the business of clothing instead of unclenching."

Western Canada

Wonderful Stock Raising Country

Vast stretches of undeveloped fertile agricultural land of the highest productiveness await the settler in Western Canada. The land possesses the same character of soil as that which has produced the high quality of cereals that have carried off the world's premier honors so many times in the past ten years.

Native Grasses are Rich and Abundant

Cattle fatten upon them without any grain being fed. Limited capital on high-priced lands is not a success, neither can the tenant burdened with high rents hope to succeed. The place to overcome these is in Western Canada—where land is cheap where a home may be made at low cost, and where dairying, mixed farming and stock-raising give an assured profit.

Land may be purchased from the Railway Companies or from responsible land companies or from private owners. Free homestead of 160 acres each are to be had in the more remote districts.

$1,000 for Some Woman OR GIRL

Who reads the new mystery story

"The Green Archer"

By EDGAR WALLACE

In THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Beginning Thursday, November 2

The story—the newspaper serial story—has become the habit, and a very good habit, of the great majority of American newspaper readers. The reason is not far to seek. After the strenuous day the evening story, moving on the wings of imagination, brings with its complete change of thought and interest a benediction of mental rest that makes an almost universal appeal.

In presenting "The Green Archer"—a new story of mystery—The Chicago Daily News introduces a new feature of added interest in story reading—a distribution of $3,000 in prizes for the best solutions of the story's mystery. Here is a battle of wits that should provoke the best efforts of the reader to rank as one of the one hundred and sixty victors in the contest.

The Chicago Daily News is pre-eminently a family newspaper, and its long established daily installment of a high-grade serial story is a feature intended specially to commend it to the home circle. To emphasize—and advertise—the fact that The Chicago Daily News is a newspaper particularly intended for women's reading, the condition is made that the three thousand dollars in prizes shall be paid only for explanations of the story's mystery sent in by women and girls. All may read, but only women and girls may enter the contest—and win the three thousand dollars.

Conditions of the Award of $3,000:

1. To the reader from whom The Daily News receives by mail at its publication offices, 15 North Wells street, Chicago, the most complete and correct solution in all its details of the entire mystery in "The Green Archer," as it shall be disclosed in the final chapter of the story, to be published Wednesday, December 13, in The Daily News, the sum of $1,000 will be paid. The entire sum of $3,000 will be awarded in 160 prizes as follows:

For the best solution	$1,000
For the second best solution	$250
For the third best solution	$150
For the fourth best solution	$100
For the next best two solutions ($75 each)	$150
For the next best four solutions ($50 each)	$200
For the next best ten solutions ($25 each)	$250
For the next best forty solutions ($10 each)	$400
For the next best one hundred solutions ($5 each)	$500

Making a total of one hundred and sixty prizes.....$3,000

2. "The Green Archer," beginning Thursday, November 2, will continue in a daily installment until Friday, December 1, on which date all but the final chapter will have been published. The interval between Friday, December 1 and Saturday, December 9, inclusive, will be allowed for forwarding the solutions of the mystery.

3. The final installment of the story, disclosing the mystery, will be published in The Daily News Wednesday, December 13.

pretty appearance, it is true, but unfortunately in radio, pretty is as pretty does, and it takes more than any artistic appearance to do the work.

One of the so-called advantages of the cage is that high tension corona losses are reduced to a minimum. If the amateur is using undamped oscillations, that is, using a vacuum tube transmitter, he need not be concerned about corona losses. However, if a damped or spark transmitter is used, the cage antenna will be advisable. Also uniform current distribution is secured by the use of the cage antenna. This is not the case with the flat-top antenna, where the currents are not equal, the outer carrying more current than the inner wires. From the foregoing it may be said that the cage antenna is to be preferred to the flat-top only because of the reduction of the high-voltage corona losses and because of the uniform current distribution.

It has been shown that antennae have certain well defined directional characteristics. The one having the most clearly defined characteristics is the loop antenna shown in Figure 9.

In actual practice a very satisfactory type of loop antenna for reception purposes consists of eight turns of No. 16 wire, spaced one-eighth, and wound on a frame 36 inches square. The fundamental wave length of this antenna is approximately 180 meters.

Obviously loop antennae need not be square. They may be triangular, circular, or any closed shape, and their linear dimensions are not necessarily fixed. Due to their small dimensions, the amount of energy picked up by them is also small, and therefore they should be used only with several stages of radio frequency amplification before the detector. See Figure 8, in which the loop is shown with only a detector.

In the hook-up, L is the loop antenna, and forms the inductance in the oscillating circuit. C is the variable condenser connected across the loop terminals and is used to tune the loop to the proper wave length.

A loop antenna in this manner has extremely sharp directional characteristics and receives signals only from stations in the plane of the loop. That is, the loop must be parallel to the direction of travel of the wave sent out by the transmitter.

Many good circuits have recently been devised, whereby loop antennae are used with success in eliminating static interference. This elimination is accomplished partly by the small linear dimensions of the loop and can be fastened either to a small post or to a peg driven into the ground.

Due to the fact that the wires of the umbrella-type antenna cover a large area of ground, the capacity of the antenna is very large. The total inductance, however, is only a little greater than that of the vertical portion of the antenna.

The umbrella-type antenna has not found a very wide field of application in commercial or amateur telegraphy. During the war it was used to some extent in portable army sets. Due to its directional characteristics, which are nil—or in other words, energy is radiated equally in all directions—it has found some favor with some high-powered commercial stations for trans-oceanic communication.

RADIO FLASHES

The New York-to-Brazil airplane carried a two-stage radio receiving warnings, time signals, news bulletins and entertainment.

All ships sailing from American harbors and carrying 50 persons are required by law to maintain and operate a radio set capable of covering at least 100 miles.

Every one of the 15 air-mail stations in the United States is radio-equipped. It is planned to provide a few of these with radio telephone, as well as radio telegraph, service.

Montclair, N. J., has installed in its high school an aerial equal in size to some of the broadcasting stations. The receiving set is in the physics department and many of the pupils are licensed operators.

It is reported that government experts have noticed that high-frequency waves from radio broadcasting stations nearby have caused vegetation to take on a larger growth and reach maturity sooner than under ordinary conditions.

It is proposed to increase the facilities for broadcasting by varying some of the many 360-meter stations by 25 or more meters. It is believed that this arrangement would permit more of the stations to operate at the same time and make it unnecessary to divide the time into so many rather short periods of operation.
